GREAT GOVERNMENT AUCTION.

Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye!

The great sale of goods belonging to the Late Lamented Government, consisting of rags, tags, bobtails, pretty things and gewgaws, will now commence. Terms, United States bonds or gold.—BRADY, Auctioneer.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, give me attention, and you'll have greater bargains than I can mention. And as these ere goods were owned by Mrs. Lincoln, if you can't give your name just hand your wink in.

Here we go:

How much for this little ring—pure gold, single diamond—worn by the female part of the government? How much? It has been kissed by many an applicant for office, is a beauty, and worth a hundred and seventy-five dollars. It was conquered in the South and given to the female part of the Late Lamented for a position in the army.

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching;
Cheer up, comrades, we will come soon as we get our commissions! How much for the ring? Five offered. Going at five! At five!—five, five, five! Will you make it ten? Remember, patriots, we have seen the extremity of the government's widow. At five, five, five, and down she goes at five, if I get no more; and sold to Moxa Morton, of Indiana.

Next, gentlemen, comes a camel hair shawl, invoiced at fifteen hundred dollars. It's a beauty, and no mistake. This, too, has covered the form of the government's widow, and is full of memories. This is the shawl she wore when she visited the soldiers in the hospitals, like the Florence Nightengale she is, and it has also graced her person while dancing with Fred. Douglass. How much for the shawl? Shawls should bring good prices. You know the Late Lamented went through Baltimore clad in one. It was not a camel hair one, and yet it was, for he who wore it had his back up! Excuse the joke. How much for the shawl? Start it as the Republican majority in Ohio, and stop it in time. Forty thousand! Will you give thirty, twenty, fifteen, ten, five, three, two? Great God, gentlemen, can I get nothing? Ah, thank you, two thousand offered—and down she goes for two thousand to Long John Wentworth, of Chicago.

Now comes a beauty—a lace flounce dress, worn on State occasions by the relict of the government. This is a dress as is a dress, Train like a string of army wagons. Beautiful goods—cost fifteen hundred dollars in Boston. Give me a bid—start it at something. Its skirts are full of blessed memories. It was presented by General Shoddy, whose son had a contract to steal cotton on shares. Give us a lift on it! Have pity on the poor relict of the government. You have seen the extremity of the relict when her clothes were held up for sale, and I know you will bid lively. One hundred dollars offered!—Too cheap, but going at a hundred.—Make it two, two, two. Ah, thank you. Who'll give it another raise? Going at two, two, two—toot—toot—toot—toot—toot—oot—oot! Raise it again, gentlemen. Ah, thank you—two and half, and a half, an' 'af, an' 'af, an' 'af'; and sold to Dandy Sprague for two hundred and fifty dollars.

And here, gentlemen, comes another shawl—a beauty. White camel hair, with red centre rising like a full moon over a snow covered prairie. Buy it for the memories. It is covered inside and out, like a butter tryer, with loyalty.—One day when the government was cracking his little jokes—while the soldiers were dying in the hospital—while the wives and widows of the soldiers were picking lint and begging for bread—this beautiful shawl was given to the better half of the government, and with it in her hand she walked like a queen to the side of her beloved, and she kissed him, and slobbered him, and wrapping it about him like a mantle, the two retired. And how they capered, and hugged, and kissed, and made glad. They were told its price, for the cost mark, $1,500, was on it then as now; and after a season the pair went forth and rewarded the giver with the New York Post Office. How much for the shawl, gentlemen? It is a part of the great struggle for freedom. And she wore this shawl when visiting the sick soldiers.

"Gently her hand o'er my forehead she pressed,
Trying to soothe me from pain and distress;
Kindly she'd say to me, be of good cheer—
Mother would comfort you if she were here."

How much for the shawl? Three hundred is offered, and down it drops to A. Wakeman, of New York.

Now, gentlemen, we have a set of furs. Cost price, $1,000 in gold. Came from the Russian possessions that was, ours that is. How much for the furs? They were highly prized by the government, both volumes! Buy them for the sake of your suffering country, and in remembrance of its fearful struggles for life!—Look ye! Do you see that long line of blue? See that mass of humanity marching against Fredericksburg. Hear the shot and shell whistle and shriek through the air. But what care brave men?—They are sustaining the best government the world ever saw. See how they march—the hot shot and bursting shell crunches through the bleeding ranks; men go down all torn and bloody; the iron foot of the cavalry horse grinds into fragments the forehead you kissed in infancy; artillery horses and wagons plunge over the dead and dying; the air is full of shrieks, curses, prayers, groans and shouts of men. All over the land is mourning for the loved who have been lost—butchered by Burnside—slaughtered for effect.

These furs were by him given to volume two of the government, and she gave him his eagle. "The Lord loves a cheerful giver!"

And while he was fighting, let us look after the furs. Only $1,000, gentlemen.

Before a glass, the Late Lamented peeping over from behind, his eyes rested on the beauties to be seen in the mirror. "How beautiful—how beautiful, ain't they, Abey?" Oh, these furs were highly prized: You have all heard—

"Republics are ungrateful," in the olden time 'twas writ—
Let's call the noun Republicans, that name's
a better fit—
For it only seems like yesterday they buried
Lincoln's dust,
And called his wife, and Tad, and Bob, the nation's sacred trust:
A trust all loyal men would keep while they his life respected—
That never could, nor would, nor should be neglected.
No need to ask of monuments, that were to be erected,
For Mrs. L. has not received that fortune she expected,
A princely fortune 'twas to be, made up of loyal dollars;
And in her lofty, regal way, why—she just up and hollers:
They've heard in all the papers, (for she does speak very clear,)
"Two thousand won't support her, and she's less than that a year."
So, soon of loyal greenbacks, if she don't rake in a heap,
She'll sell her "go-to meetin' clo's," and sell them dreadful cheap.

For sale! Who'll buy? Duds rich and rare!
Diamonds, and shawls of camel's hair!
And laces that a queen might wear!
And furs from Russia far!
Poor Mrs. Government!

How much for the shawl? Oh, one hundred dollars, and down it goes to Burnside, to keep him warm, for one hundred dollars.

Now, gentlemen, we'll offer a gold watch and four dozen gold spoons, assorted sizes. These are valuable goods, saved from the war by one Butler, ignominously called cock-eye! He was a favorite of volume two of the government, and as he first saw her frightful extremity, he liberally gave of his earnings to support her. These goods are pure gold!—no silver plate. They have a ten-fold value. They belonged to the patriots of the revolution—to the late rebels—to the people of the South, which was, which was not, which is and which ain't! They were conquered by Butler and presented to the second volume of the government for a position.

This watch, gentlemen, has been under the furs, under the laces, under the eye of Mrs. Lincoln. It has been in the hands of the "B. B." and the "L. L.," and is warranted a perfect timer!

It is dreadful to think the government's widow is so hard up!

The scowling Loyal Leaguers cry—"She is some party's tool!"
And the Democrats, they chuckling say—
"Oh, no; she's but a fool!"
But one thing's clear and certain—all parties are agreed
That tool or fool, she told some truths; and he who runs may read.
Read what a thing is loyalty when it's well
dissected—
Why the people gave their dollars, and not one of them suspected.
Somebody of them, "sartain sure," but they were misdirected (?),
For Mrs. L. has not received that fortune
she expected.
She knows she ought to have it, and she thinks somebody's got it,
And that's the reason why she makes this precious fuss about it.
What a chance for a committee, all loyal to a man,
With that sweet, cherubic bummer, Ben.
Butler in its van.
They could search this mighty nation till they found her greenback heap,
And save those "go-to-meetin' clo's," for she'll sell them dreadful cheap!

For sale! Who'll buy? Duds rich and rare!
Diamonds, and shawls of camel's hair!
And laces that a queen might wear!
And watches and spoons of choicest ware!
Poor Mrs. Government!

Next, gentlemen, comes some handkerchiefs valued at two hundred dollars. They are elegant—can blow your nose clean through 'em! The "L. L." never tooted his couch with their folds—they were used only on State occasions. There is a tinge of red on them—the fading blushes of the relict. Oft has she held these presented wipers to her face, and blushed, and said "Oh don't!" 'Oh I'm not worthy such presents!" and "Yes, I'll get the office for you!" and "Oh certainly, I'll coax it out of Abey!" And "To be sure you can have the foreign mission for a boxfull of these?" And so the poor woman suffered for her country. My God, gentlemen, but how she suffered! How much for the wiper—lace, like cob-webs, beautiful as tissue paper? Only half a dollar! Oh, gentlemen, that is awful! Wait—I'll add a night shirt which belonged to the government; was not seen, or would have been sold with the eleven shirts the martyr left when he returned to Springfield. How much, gentlemen? Help the relict.

"Last night she slept in a feather, feather bed,
To-night she sleeps on the cold, cold ground;
In the arms of Gipsy Davey."

Bid lively, gentlemen, for all the relics left by the martyr, including his widow, are very dear to the nation.

Bid lively, gents—time is precious, for if the returns from a disgusted people do not quit coming in as of late these goods will not bring cost. Bid fast—a kiss from the second volume of the government thrown in. Kisses sold for ten cents and a cup of coffee for five. Help the soldiers sustain the government! And down goes the wiper and night shirt to Ben. Wade for sixty cents.

An Attempt to Poison Washington.

In the summer of 1777, when the American army was in New York, a young girl of the city went to her lover, one Francis, and communicated him a secret she had overheard—a plan that was in operation among the Government men to destroy the American Commander-in-Chief by poison, which was to be plentifully mingled with his green peas, a favorite vegetable of his, on the following day, at Richmond Hill headquarters, where he was to dine. Francis, who was a thorough Whig, although supposed to be friendly to the royalists, went immediately to Washington and acquainted him with this diabolical plan for his destruction. Washington, having listened with attention, said:

"My friend, I thank you. Your fidelity has saved my life—for what preserved the Almighty knows! But now for your safety, I charge you to return to your house and let not a word of what you have related to me pass your lips. It would involve you in certain ruin; and Heaven forbid that your life should be forfeited or endangered by your faith to me! I will take the necessary steps to prevent, and at the same time discover, the instrument of this wicked device."

The next day, about two hours before dinner, he sent for one of his guard, told him of the plot, and requested that he would disguise himself as a female, and go to the kitchen, there to keep a strict watch upon the peas until they should be served up for the table. The young man carefully observed the directions he had received, and had not been long upon his post of duty before a young man, another of the guard, came anxiously to the door of the kitchen, looked in, and then passed away. In a few moments after, he returned and approached the hearth where the peas stood, and was about to mingle in the deadly substance, when suddenly he shrunk back, as though from the sting of the four-tongued adder; his color changed to the pale hue of death, and his limbs apparently palsied with fear, evidently horror-stricken with his own purpose; but soon, however, the operation of a more powerful incentative urged forward his reluctant hand, that tremblingly strewed the odious bane; and he left the kitchen, overwhelmed with conflicting passions, remorse and confusion.

"Harold sleeps no more; the cry has reached his heart ere the deed is accomplished," said the youth on duty, in a voice devoid of pity, as he looked upon the self-condemned wretch.

"What, Harold?" said the commander-in-chief, sorrowfully upon receiving the information; "can it be possible? so young, so fair and gentle. He would have been the last person upon whom suspicion of that nature could have fallen, by right of countenance. You have done well," said he to the youth before him. "Go join your comrades and be secret."

The young man went accordingly; and Washington returned to the piazza, where several officers were assembled, among whom was the hero of Saratoga, who was waiting further orders from Congress before he departed for Canada. In a few moments dinner was announced; and the party was ushered into a handsome apartment, where the sumptuous board was spread, covered with all the delicacies of the season.

The commander-in-chief took his seat, placing General Gates on his right hand and General Wooster on his left. When the remainder of the officers and company were seated, and eager to commence the duties of the table, the chief said impressively:

"Gentlemen, I must request you to suspend your meal for a few moments. Let the guard attend me."

All was silence and amazement. The guard entered and formed into line toward the upper end of the apartment.

Washington, having put on his plate a spoonful of peas, fixed his eyes sternly upon the guilty man, and said:

"Shall I eat of this vegetable?"

The youth turned pale and became dreadfully agitated, while his trembling lips faintly uttered:

"I don't know."

"Shall I eat of these?" again demanded Washington, raising some upon a knife.

Here Harold elevated his hand, as if by an involuntary impulse, to prevent their being tasted. A chicken was then brought in, that a conclusive experiment might be made, in the presence of all those witnesses. The fowl ate of the peas, and immediately died; and the wretched criminal, overcome with terror and remorse, fell fainting, and was borne from the apartment.

WHEN people are sworn in a court of justice they kiss the outside of the book, doubtless because they consider an oath a "binding" matter.

A LAWYER'S ADVENTURE.

About four years ago, while I was practicing law in Illinois, on a pretty large circuit, I was called on one day in my office by a very pretty woman, who not without tears, told me that her husband had been arrested for horse-stealing. She wished to retain me for the defence. I asked why she did not go to Judge R——, an ex-Senator of the United States, whose office was in town. I told her that I was a young man at the bar, &c. She mournfully said that he had asked a retaining fee beyond her means; besides he did not want to touch the case, for her husband was suspected of belonging to an extensive band of horse-thieves and counterfeiters whose headquarters were then at Moore's prairie. I asked her to tell me the whole truth of the matter, and if it was true that her husband did belong to such a band.

"Ah, sir," said she, "a better man at heart than my George never lived, but he likes cards and drink, and I am afraid they made him do what he never would have done if he had not drank. I fear it can be proved that he had the horse; he didn't steal it; another stole it and passed it to him."

I didn't like the case. I knew there was a great dislike to the gang located where she named, and feared to risk the case before the jury. She seemed to observe my intention to refuse the case, and burst into tears.

I never could see a woman weep without feeling like a weak fool myself. If it hadn't been for eyes brightened with "pearly tears," I'd never been caught in the lasso of matrimony. My would be client was pretty. The handkerchief that hid her streaming eyes didn't hide her red lips; and her snowy bosom rose and fell like a white gull in a gale of wind at sea. I took the case, and she gave me the particulars.

The gang of which he was not a member had persuaded him to take the horse. He knew it was stolen, and like a fool, acknowledged it when arrested. Worse still, he had trimmed the horse's mane and tail so as to alter its appearance, and the opposite party could prove it. The trial came on. I worked to get a jury of ignorant men, who had more heart than brains; who, if they could not fathom the depths of an argument or follow the labyrinthian mazes of law, could feel for a young fellow in a bad fix and a weeping, pretty wife, nearly heart-broken and quite distracted.

Knowing the use of "effect," I told her to dress in deep mourning and bring her little cherub of a boy, only three years old, into court, and sit as near to her husband as the officers would let her. I tried the game once in a murder case, and a weeping wife and sister made a jury render a verdict against law, evidence, and the Judge's charge, and saved a fellow that ought to have been hung as high as Haman.

The prosecution opened very bitterly, and inveighed against thieves and counterfeiters, who had made the land a terror to strangers and travellers, and who had robbed every farmer in the region of his finest horses. It introduced witnesses, and it proved all and more than I feared it would. The time came for me to rise for defence. Witness I had none. But I had to make an effort, only hoping so to interest the jury as to secure a recommendation to Gubernatorial clemency and a light sentence.

So I painted his picture. A young man entering into life, wedded to an angel—beautiful in person, possessing every noble attribute. Temptation lay before and around him. He kept a tavern.

There were many guests. It was not for him to inquire their business; they dressed well, made large bills and paid promptly. At an ungarded hour, when he was insane with liquor, they urged crime upon him; he deviated from the path of rectitude. The demon alcohol reigned in his brain, and it was his first offence. Mercy pleaded for another chance to save him from ruin. Justice did not require that his young wife should go down sorrowing to the grave, and that the shadow and taunt of a felon father should cross the path of that sweet child. Oh, how earnestly did I plead for them! The woman wept; the husband did the same; the jury looked melting. If I could have had the closing speech he would have been cleared; but the prosecution had the close and threw ice on the fire I kindled. But did not quite put it out.

The Judge charged according to law and evidence, but evidently leaned on the side of mercy. The jury found a verdict of guilty, but unanimously recommended the prisoner to the mercy of the court. My client was sentenced to the shortest imprisonment the court was empowered to give, and both jury and court signed a petition to the Governor for an unconditional pardon, which has since been kindly granted, but not before the following interesting incident occurred:

Some three months after this, I received an account for collection from a wholesale house in New York. The parties to collect from were hard ones; but they had property, and before they had an idea of the trap laid, I had the property, which they were about to assign, before they broke, under attachment. Finding I was a neck ahead and bound to win, they "caved in" and forked over $3,594,18 (per memorandum book) in good money. They lived in Shawneetown, about thirty five or forty miles southeast of Moore's prairie. I received the funds just after the bank opened, but other business detained me until after dinner. I then started for C——, intending to go as far as the village of Mount Vernon that night.

I had gone along ten or twelve miles, when I noticed a splendid team of horses attached to a light wagon, in which were seated four men, evidently of the high-strung order. They swept past me as if to show me how easily they could do it. They shortened in, and allowed me to come up with them, and asked me to come up with them, and asked me to "wet," or, in other words, diminish the jug of old rye they had aboard; but I excused myself with the plea that I had plenty on board. They asked me how far I was going. I told them as far as Mount Vernon, if my horse didn't tire out. They mentioned a pleasant tavern ten or twelve miles ahead as a nice stopping place, and drove on. I did not like the looks of those fellows, nor their actions. But I was bound to go ahead. I had a brace of revolvers and a nice knife; my money was in my belt around my body. I drove slow, in hopes they would go on, and I should see them no more. It was nearly dark when I saw the tavern sign ahead. At the same time I saw their wagon before the door. I would have passed on, but my horse needed rest. I hauled up, and a woman came to the door. She turned as pale as a sheet when she saw me. She did not speak, but with a meaning look she put her finger on lips, and beckoned me to come in. She was the wife of my client. When I entered the party recognized me, and hailed me as an old traveling friend, and asked me to take a drink. I respectfully but firmly declined.

"But you'd drink or fight!" said the noisiest of the party.

"Just as you please; drink I shall not!" said I purposely showing the butt of a Colt that kicks seven times in rapid succession.

The others interposed and very easily quieted my opponent. One offered me a cigar, which I should not have received, but a glance at the woman induced me to accept it. She advanced and proffered me a light, and in doing so slipped a note into my hand, which she must have written the moment before; it was written with a pencil. Never shall I forget the words. They were:

"Beware—they are members of the gang. They mean to rob and murder you. Leave soon, and I will manage to detain them."

I did not feel comfortable just then, but tried to look so.

"Have you any room to put my horse?" I asked, turning to the woman.

"What! you are not going to stay here to-night?" asked one of the men; "we are going on."

"I think I shall stay," I replied.

"We'll all stay, then, I guess, and make a night of it," said one of the cutthroats.

"You will have to put up your own hoss; here's a lantern," said the woman.

"I am used to that," I said. "Gentlemen, excuse me—I will join you in a drink when I come in."

"Good on your head! more whisky, old gal," shouted they.

I went out and glanced at their wagon. It was an old fashioned one, and linchpins secured the wheels. To take out my knife and pry one from the fore and hind wheels was but the work of a moment, and I threw them in the darkness as far as I could. To untie my horse and dash off was but the work of an instant. The road lay down a steep hill, but my lantern lighted me somewhat. I had hardly got under good headway before I heard a yell from the party I had so unceremoniously left. I put the whip to my horse. The next moment they started. I threw my light away, and left my horse to pick his way. A moment afterward I heard a crash—a horrid shriek. The wheels were off. Then came the rush of horses, tearing along with the wreck of the wagon. Finally they seemed to fetch up in the woods. One or two shrieks I heard as I swept on, leaving them far behind. For some time I hurried my horse—you'd better believe "rid." It was a little after midnight when I got to Mount Vernon. The next day I heard that Moore's prairie team had run away, and two men of the four had been so badly hurt that their lives were despaired of; but I did not cry. My client got the money, but I didn't travel that road any more.

POWERS OF A BIRD'S SONG.—When we hear the song of the soaring lark we may be sure that the entire atmosphere between us and the bird is filled with pulses or undulations, or waves as they are often called, produced by the little songster's organ of voice. This organ is a vibrating instrument, resembling in principle the reed of a clarionet. Let us suppose that we hear the song of the lark elevated to the height of five hundred feet in the air. Before this is possible the bird must have agitated a sphere of air one thousand feet in diameter—that is to say, it must have communicated to seven thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven tons of air a motion sufficiently intense to be appreciated by our organs of hearing.

A MAN'S money seldom grows half as fast as his love for it.

VICTORY!

DEMOCRATIC TRIUMPH IN NEW YORK

NEW JERSEY FOLLOWS SUIT.

OTHER STATES DO NOBLY.

Wednesday's mail has brought us the gratifying intelligence that the State of New York has gone Democratic, in the election on Tuesday, by from 25,000 to 30,000. The city gave a majority of 60,022 for the Democratic ticket. To add to the glory of this overwhelming triumph, it is considered probable that the Democrats have gained the Legislature.

In New Jersey the true friends of the Union are said to have carried everything before them, defeating negro suffrage and securing a majority in the Legislature.

Massachusetts has gone Republican, of course, but even from that dark corner of creation there is reason to believe that a ray of light, in shape of greatly reduced radical majorities, will yet gladden the hearts of the conservative masses.

In Kansas negro and female suffrage have both found their quietus.

"PURITANISM."

The Alleghanian finds fault with the Democrats for applying the term "Puritanism" in an obnoxious sense to the party which it sustains. Whether or not they are right in the use of the term depends upon the history of parties in the mother country.

Puritanism as now understood, first became a power in the State during the reign of Charles I. of England, and ruled the British Isles after his decapitation, which was accomplished by them. While under their monarchy they professed Democracy, no sooner was the King beheaded than they in turn became tyrants. So tired were the people of their sway, that their idol, Oliver Cromwell, though he died a natural death, had no sooner passed from the stage than they welcomed as King the son of the decapitated monarch.

The personelle of the Puritans was marked and peculiar. They shaved their hair close, whence they were denominated round-heads, eschewed all appearance of elegance in dress, made long public prayers before any undertaking of importance, and adopted a nasal, canting whine, in lieu of their ordinary tone, even in familiar conversations. As a ruling power they were not only arbitrary and tyrannical in what usually pertains to the science of government, but carried government far beyond its ordinary functions. They took heed to what the people ate and drank, and "wherewithal they should be clothed"—compelled the people by legal enactments to attend a particular church, and undertook to control all social actions and relations in every particular.

Democrats, as contra-distinguished from Puritans, on the contrary, hold the doctrine that the "world is governed too much," that the duty of the government to the citizen is to protect him in his "personal liberty, personal security and private property," leaving him full liberty to "pursue his own happiness" in that manner most in accordance with his own wishes. We do not believe that even a Christian was made by Act of Assembly.

The distinction between a Democrat and a Puritan is so well given in the annexed quotation of a speech made by Gov. Seymour, of New York, that we insert it:

TRUTHFUL PARALLELS.—At a late meeting of the New York Democracy, Governor Seymour made the following good "points:"

"The world once saw a mighty monarch, one of the greatest whom history tells, who, after a career of triumph, at length laid down the cares of state, went to a convent and amused himself by making watches. He had been one of those men who had attempted to force his own ideas upon other men, somewhat like one of our modern bigots, who being troubled with dyspepsia, and having lost his appetite, wants all other men to fast. [Laughter.] The monarch attempted to make two watches alike, but finally giving up in despair, he said, 'How have I wasted this life of mine! I, who cannot make two pieces of machinery that will run alike, have spent my life in trying to make a piece of God's wonderful machinery work and act alike.' Our Republican friends believe in the power of government to do that which we believe is best done by every man's own honest convictions of right. But, I assert in the language of Milton, who was not only a great poet but a great statesman, that you can have no great civilization in any land where men are coerced in every action of their lives. I once asked a gentleman if he believed in this system of coercion so completely that if a man would not drink for ten years because the law would not let him, he would be a temperance man thereafter. He said he did. I said, 'Suppose you make a law so perfect that he would not be guilty of any misdemeanor whatever, would you not consider that better still?' He said he would. I said, 'Suppose you make a law so perfect that he shall rise, retire, and labor regularly, read his Bible every day in his bedroom, and go to church twice a day every Sunday, engage in no immoral conversation, and be subjected to no temptations—would not that be the perfection of your system?' He admitted that it would. "Well, my friend,' said I, 'If you go down to Sing Sing you will find a thousand men living under your system, and if one of them escaped to-morrow and your house was burned, he would be the first man you would arrest.'" [Loud laughter and applause.] Governor Seymour closed [illegible] his confidence in the certainty

A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

We much regret that want of space prevents us from transferring to our columns, from the Sunday Mercury, a further account of that clerical scamp, Rev. J. L. Richards. This fellow reached Philadelphia in the character of a clergyman, and was hospitably received by our former fellow citizen, MR. JAMES H. DAVIS, and kindly entertained for nearly two months. This kindness was repaid with base ingratitude, followed by a gross libel, for which his reverence has just paid the penalty, before Judge Ludlow, in the Quarter Sessions.

Meanwhile the formee congregation of Richards, at Big Rock, Illinois, was addressed, and they give their quondum preacher anything but a flattering character. They say: "He had to leave our church disorderly, after doing a deed that he ought not to do," &c.

Our friend, Mr. Davis, desrves credit for exposing this hypocrite, and warning his countrymen of the style of this imposter, that he may not give further trouble in religious circles.

McShane in Pittsburgh.

Dear Freeman: The Courts, State and National, are all in "the full tide of successful operation," and I thought it right to attend here in propria persona, and give you such items as might interest you and your readers. Stopped at the St. Charles—got a room on the first floor, No. 93—for at this house the higher the figures the lower the room. Of course, I was within easy marching distance of the dining room. On Monday morning I sauntered up to the Supreme Court Room, which is in an obscure corner of the Court House building, corner of Fifth and Grant streets. I reached this point through about four squares of dirty pavements and muddy streets, and then had to climb three distinct series of stone steps, enough to take the breath from anybody. This location, above the surrounding world, may suit the lawyers, but it is very difficult for laymen, (quere, lame men,) to reach it. When these difficulties are all surmounted you may find your way to the chamber occupied by the S. C.—if there is anybody to direct you!

But I got there! The Court was commencing its sessions for the "old tenth district," Westmoreland, Indiana, Armstrong and Cambria—the latter county having been since changed to the twenty-fourth district.

On former visits to Smokedom I have heard the word "copperhead" very freely applied by those calling themselves gentlemen, to those who were gentlemen. On the present visit I did not hear the term used. This is the "result of the election."

I account for the fact of Allegheny county giving 6,000 majority by the unqualified assertion that no man can go into anything here with clean hands!

The St. Charles Hotel is better kept than ever. The rooms clean to a miracle for Pittsburgh, an excellent bill of fare, and a very fair bill.

The streets of Pittsburgh I found muddier than the muddiest part of the road from Ebensburg to Carrolltown.

Visited U. S. District Court room. Found the building damp and chilly, although Moore Cole was marshalled there than usual.

But enough of Pittsburgh! Give me in preference, now and forever, my own mountain home. Uncleanlily yours, McSHANE.

A THRILLING RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—While the freight train on the Mississippi Central Railroad was going southward Tuesday morning from Grand Junction, the track suddenly spread. The result was the smashing and almost complete demolition of one car, and the damaging of six others. Fortunately, no person aboard was injured. On the same morning an accident occurred to the northward bound passenger train on the same road, eight miles from Holly Springs. The train was proceeding over a lengthy stretch of trestle-work, at full speed, when suddenly the forward car ran off the rails and commenced jolting over the ties. The train was at least fifty feet from the ground, and at a distance of fifty yards from the end of the trestle-work.

The engineer. Mr. Savage promptly reversed the engine, hoping to stop the train before it could be precipitated below, which result seemed inevitable, but the impetus was too great, and marvelous as it may seem, the cars continued en route at great speed, every moment lessening the distance between the trestle-work and the firm track beyond, and passing to a place of safety without a single car being detached or a single car injured. A gentleman aboard the train informs us that no words could depict the horror of the passengers during the few moments of peril. All knew that the trestle-work was a great distance form the ground, and every moment anticipated being hurled below. When the train finally stopped, the feelings of the lately imperiled passengers may be more easily imagined than described. Dnring the perilous passage of the train, the conductor, Mr. Long, deeming its escape from destruction impossible, jumped from the platform of a car to the ground, a distance of thirty-five feet at that point. The injuries sustained were of a trivial character. This was one of the most remarkable railroad accidents on record, and the escape of the passengers from either death or horrible managing seems scarcely less than a miracle.—Memphis Ledger, October 26.

MRS. HOFFMAN, the woman who was stabbed in church at Canton, Ohio, on Sunday, the 13th October, by a divorced husband, died on Saturday week. Hoffman hung himself in his cell on Sunday night. He had tried to kill himself by bumping his head against a wall, but failing in this made rope from his bed clothing and hung himself to the wall of National Democratic Address.

The following address has been issued by the Democratic Resident Executive Committee at Washington, D. C.:

FELLOW CITIZENS—Patriotism and fraternal love unite their voices in calling upon every American freeman to remember that one day spent in the service of his country, may avert many days of national disaster and distress. The immediate present, fraught with the mightiest affairs of state, cannot be neglected by supporters and defenders of constitutional law and liberty. The present involves a turning point in our history. A splendid and crowning victory for Democratic conservatism, stability, the integrity of our nationality, will render our progress in the march of nations equal and indivisible. It is not our object to specify in detail the reasons that ought to govern the action in this crisis of all sincere friends of the true principles of our government. They are weighty and manifold. They appeal to the reason and judgment of the people with the same force and spirit which conquered the independance of America, sustained her honor and glory in 1812, added to her renown in 1846, and preserved her unity and integrity in 1861. It is our country calling upon her patriotic sons to do their duty. It is our mother extending her hands to her children for support. He who refuses to heed the call is unworthy of his share in the rich heritage of American freemen. Every recollection of the glorious past, every remembrance of the mighty deeds and mighty names of our heroes and our martyrs, every consideration in the present, peace, concord, fraternity, union, prosperity and happiness—all demand that in the hour of coming action every true soldier of American independence, of the Constitution, of liberty, and of law, shall be found in the line of battle. Strike the enemy by your votes with the strength of Jove. Let your blows through the ballot box be sure and effective, and let Radicalism—thus practically and effectually find its final death-blow and winding sheet in the lasting memory of its many crimes.

How Times have Changed.

A short time ago the Evening Telegraph, of Philadelphia, a Radical newspaper, contained the following damaging statement:

"Later than those days of her pride and power, when supposed to be mourning the martyrdom of her husband, the horror of which shook to its centre the heart of the nation, Mrs. Lincoln managed, by circulating the report that she was about to become a mother, to retain for many weeks the possession of the Presidential mansion, excluding Mr. Johnson and his family whilst she was packing up and appropriating to her own use all the portable valuables the house contained, including the gold forks, spoons, etc., which were no more the property of the President's widow than the crown jewels of England. To so great an extent was the plunder carried on that it became necessary to refurnish the executive mansion entirely upon Mrs. Lincoln's evacuation of it, to render it fit for the occupancy of the present incumbent."

Had such charges as the above been brought three years ago, by any paper in the land, instant suppression would have followed, as well as the imprisonment of the editors and publishers in a federal bastile. For less grave offences than this hundreds of men have lain for months in dark, loathsome dungeons and lousy guardhouses, pleading in vain for freedom or trial. Then the President was the "Government," and his wife "the first lady in the land," to say a word against whom disparagingly or disapprovingly was unanimously denounced by the Radical press as a crime akin to treason and deserving of the severest punishment.

How times have changed! The King is dead. His wife—"the first lady in the land"—is now a "poor lone woman," whose power and influence have departed; whose voice is no longer potent to secure cotton permits and shoddy contracts, Shame on the spaniels that once crawled in the dust at her feet for favors and that now snap at her heels because she has nothing to bestow.—Patriot and Union.

ROME.—Garibaldi, the soap chandler and general disturber of the peace, is not getting along as well in his little filibustering arrangement before Rome, as some of his friends would desire. He has with him a lot of ragamuffins, whose whole object is plunder. They do not represent the people any more than the brigands of Mexico represent the true interests of the people of that country. Victor Emanuel does not accept the offer of Louis Napoleon to leave the question to a vote of the Italian people, announced by the cable.

We should not be surprised to hear of Mr. Seward, who is always on the lookout for a hit, and is frequently successful, proposing to the ruling powers of Europe to guarantee to the Pope ten miles square, making Rome the centre. This would be an exact copy of the greatest republic in the world, which has always claimed for the free exercise of the Federal authority just that extent of territory. We have doubt that the Holy Father would be delighted to be rid of the vexation which has always accompanied his temporal duties, His rule has always been so parental and mild. that his limited dominions have been the refuge of uneasy spirits thrown off in the various disturbances in Europe, who, having nothing else to do, stir up strife for the love of it, and have, on more than one occasion, been the means of embroiling surrounding nations in contentions. If the Pope only sympathised with the school of puritanical Yankee pedlers, it would not be long before we would hear of a fleet of iron clads in the Mediterranean to protect him.—Pittsburgh Post.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

—The people of Twin Prairie discovered a man setting fire to the prairie grass, a few days since, and caught and hung him.

—Five New York burglars—two of them women—were arrested, the other day, after having carried off three wagon loads of clothing from a store.

—Thad Stevens—"sick as he is"—has written a letter reiterating his fanatical dogma that Congress has a right to enforce negro suffrage in all the States.

—Gen. Lyle, the newly elected democratic Sheriff of Philadelphia, while riding on the Darby road, on Friday evening, was run into and had one of his legs broken.

—Miss Susie C. Godsa, who has profoundly slept for the past eighteen years, only waking at intervals of from one to ten minutes, is now on exhibition at Nashville.

—Mr. William Kane has a wife in Chicago, another in St. Paul, and a third in Savannah, and a Chicago paper intimates that he intends to establish one in every State in the Disunion.

—Several pick-pockets, disguised as Quakers, got into the yearly meeting of the Hicksite Friends, at Baltimore, on Friday, and relieved many of the members of their watches and pocket books.

—The fact that the perjurer, Sanford Conover, is in the penitentiary, and that Stanton, Holt, and Ashley, who employed him, are still at large, strikes the public sense of justice as very singular.

—Gov. Geary has issued his proclamation naming the same day designated by the President, (Thursday, 28th of November,) as a day of thanksgiving and praise to the Almighty Ruler of the Universe.

—A coroner's jury after investigating the death of a child in Buffalo, brought in a verdict of "death from the injudicous administration of Winslow's Soothing Syrup, which caused convulsions and congestion of the brain."

—The Tribune is strong in faith that manhood suffrage (a sweet name for negro suffrage) will yet strike the popular heart. It has already struck the popular heart as being one of the greatest conceivable insults to the white race. It has "struck the popular heart" so hard, that it has knocked the Mongrel party all to pieces.

—The bonds that bound the negroes of the South was removed by the bayonet, after four years of bloody war. The whites of the North demand that they shall be relieved of the bonds that are binding them, and they will have it, through greenbacks.

—On Thursday the wife of Lawrence Lightner, a farmer near Eden, Lancaster county, while assisting at threshing, fell down into the teeth of the machine, which was making fifteen hundred revolutions a minute. When taken out one arm was literally ground to pieces and the cap of one knee cut off. It is not expected that she will recover.

—The testimony before the Impeachment Committee, now in the hands of the printers, shows that as late as the spring of 1866 Gen. Grant perfectly agreed with the President as to his general policy, and that the proclamation of the President in reference to reconstruction is the identical paper which was prepared by President Lincoln, and intended by him to be promulgated as his method of settling all sectional difficulties.

—On the night of the 30th ult. Mrs. Walker shot her husband at Bound Brook, New Jersey. Charles J. Walker, her husband, has been cohabiting with a woman at that place for several years, which led the outraged woman to avenge her wrongs. Walker and his wife lived in New Brunswick, N. J., and occupied a respectable position in society. Mrs. Walker fired the contents of the revolver at her husband, several of the balls taking effect in the head, causing instant death.

THE PEDESTRIAN AND HIS WAGER.—Edward Payson Weston, the pedestrian is twenty-eight years of age, weighs some 135 pounds, is of light complexion, and has a pleasant expression of countenance, without developing any particular characteristics. He has undertaken a journey of twelve hundred and twenty-six miles, in thirty days, less the four Sundays, on a wager of $10,000. The starting point was Portland, and the ending Chicago. He is attended by John Grindell, a well-known pedestrian, and Edward Ingalls; and Mr. T. F. Wilcox, the other party to the wager is represented by Benjamin M. Curtis and John T. Laphen. The latter gentlemen go over the route with Weston, but ride in a carriage. Messrs. Grindell and Ingalls are also allowed that privilege when they desire. Weston wears a blue sack coat, short breeches close to the skin, red socks, and gaiter shoes reaching well above the ankles. Upon his head he has a hat nearly white, made of cloth, the rim of which was buttoned at the top from four sides. In his hand he carries a rattan stick. His gait is easy and his speed fast.

The utmost care is taken to preserve his health. He eats sparingly of eggs, chicken, beefsteak and stale bread; drinks cold tea, sleeps on husks and expects to accomplish his journey by the 28th inst.; or rather he has that period in which to accomplish it. The feat is one that will tax the courageous pedestrian, and if he accomplishes it the sum named is none too much for compensation.

THE INSURRECTION IN ITALY.—The latest intelligence per cable from Europe is to the effect that on Sunday last, 4th inst., the Papal troops, supported by the French forces, attacked Garibaldi at Monte Rotondo, and defeated him. Some reports say that Garibaldi is a prisoner, and others that he was killed. About half an hour after the attack commenced Garibaldi, finding that his retreat was cut off, fought his way to the town of Monte Rotondo, where he was reinforced by some Italian troops, but the French coming to the assistance of the Pontifical soldiers, he was beaten. Another account says that he retreated and surrendered to the Italians.

SCHENCK'S SEAWEED TONIC.—This medicine, invented by Dr. J. H. Schenck of Philadelphia, is intended to dissolve the food and make it into chyme, the first process of digestion. By cleansing the stomach with Schenck's Mandrake Pills, the Tonic soon restores the appetite, and food that could not be eaten before using it will be easily digested.

Consumption cannot be cured by Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup unless the stomach and liver is made healthy and the appetite restored, hence the Tonic and Pills are required in nearly every case of consumption. A half dozen bottles of the Seaweed Tonic and three or four boxes of the Mandrake Pills will cure any ordinary case of dyspepsia.

Dr. Schenck makes professional visits in New York, Boston, and at his principal office in Philadelphia every week. See daily papers in each place, or his pamphet on consumption, for his days of visitation.

Please observe, when purchasing, that the two likenesses of the doctor, one when in the last stage of consumption, and the other as he now is, in perfect health, are on the Government stamp.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers; price $1,50 per bottle, or $7,50 the half dozen. All letters for advice should be addressed to Dr. Schenck's Principal Office, No. 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.—A man some time since was repairing a gas leak, corner of 28th Street and 6th Avenue, New York. He went in to the excavation and then lit a match. An explosion of gas took place, and the man was much burned. Dr. Tobias' Venetian Liniment was applied freely, and in three days the man was about his business in the Manhattan Gas Works as well as ever. His name is Samuel F. Waters. This is one of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Tobias' celebrated Venetian Liniment; it is not only good for Burns, but for old Sores, Bruises, Chronic Rheumatism, Sore Throats, Cuts, Insect Stings, Pains in the Limbs, Chest and Back; also internally, for Colic, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Croup. CASUALTIES, LOCAL AND GENERAL.—A man named John Middleton, of Clearfield county, was found dead in his bed at a house in Gaysport, Blair county, on the morning of the 26th ult.

The communication of our young friend "R. S." has been unavoidably crowded out of our columns this week. It will certainly appear in our next issue.

Our young friend, Theodore Singer, of Ebensburg, has done us the kindness to obtain a list of new subscribers for the Freeman in his thriving borough. Long may he live prosper, and happy ever be him and his.

The new Catholic church at Carrolltown will be dedicated to the service of Almighty God on Wednesday next, 13th inst. Bishop Domenec and several of the leading clergymen of the diocese will participate in the ceremonies.

The Catholic young ladies of Hollidaysburg are just now engaged in the laudable undertaking of raising money by means of a fair to liquidate the debt incurred in the erection of the new Academy building at that place. Success attend them.

We have a genial, good natured man of letters, named J. Lloyd, has removed the post-office and store thereto pertaining, to his former place-room, adjoining his residence, which has recently fitted up in good style. Of course everybody will go to see him.

A man night recently, a coal miner named Fisher, was killed at Larimer's Station, Westmoreland county, by being run over by a train of cars. A number of trains passed over the body, literally tearing him to pieces. It is supposed that his head was carried to Pittsburgh on a cow-catcher.

On Saturday week, officer Cline, of Greensburg, arrested John Brown, of Bolivar, Pa., on oath of James Fleming, Ticket Agent at Irwin Station, P. R. R., with stealing goods from said Station, valued at thirty dollars, which was expressed from Johnstown for Rev. W. R. Jones. In default of bail Brown was committed to jail to await trial.

A drunken intoxicated man was caught, one night recently before last, on the cow-catcher of a locomotive, on the Pennsylvania railroad, and carried about a mile and a half, when he was thrown off. Word was sent back by another train to look out for him, and on arriving at the place designated he was found lying by the side of the track, sound asleep and uninjured.

By a letter we learn that our military friend, Capt. James H. Gageby, has been assigned recruiting service at Boston, Mass., where he expects to be on duty during the coming winter, at least. The Captain is one of the "jolliest "fellows" that ever revolved around the "Hub," and we trust that when he has his "tracks" from that city it will be to occupy a position of still higher honor and profit elsewhere.

On Saturday, 19th ult., a son of Alex. Coleman, of Mount Pleasant, Westmoreland county, met a melancholy death from the effects of an explosion of powder which he carried in his pantaloon's pocket. He and several companions were gathering apples, when one of them playfully threw an apple at him, which ignited some matches in the same pocket with the powder, producing explosion from which he died the following Monday.

One of those sad and disgusting sights which, thank God, seldom shock the feelings of our people, presented itself in our town on Monday last. A poor, depraved looking human, in a most beastly state of intoxication, went reeling for a time through several of the principal streets, indulging in the most obscene and profane language, but was finally arrested and committed to jail, from which it is to be hoped she will emerge duly sober and repentant.

A man named Lowry, confined in the Huntingdon county jail on the charge of horse stealing, made his escape from that institution on the night of the 22d ult., by unlocking the door with his finger! On the night of his escape he stole a horse from the pasture field of William Morningstar, in Walker township, which he rode some distance up Woodcock Valley, where he exchanged it for a horse belonging to Mr. Wilson, and after riding it to Coffee Run, he turned it loose and took to the mountains. The hills from the Broad Top region, and it is supposed that he is lurking in that neighborhood.

The fire in Altoona, noticed by us last week, occurred on Sunday night instead of Monday afternoon. The building owned by Messrs. Lang & Winters, and occupied by that firm as a stove and tinware establishment, and by Fred, Blumhard as a boot and shoe store and M. Runyon as a meat market, and also a building adjoining, used as a grocery store, were entirely destroyed. The loss by the fire and the pilfering indulged in during its progress will probably exceed $20,000, and the insurance will not cover much more than half the loss. The fire is believed to have been the work of incendiaries. Two men have been arrested, charged with stealing shoes during the fire.

FAST AND FESTIVE FEMALES.—Mr. Wash. Lloyd, of Susquehanna township, woke up on Tuesday morning to find a number of boards torn off the side of his barn and two of his best horses, saddles, etc., among the missing. He immediately started in pursuit and traced them to Jacob Yost's, in Carroll township, where he learned that a couple of young girls from his neighborhood, who bear rather unenviable reputations, had passed on their way to Ebensburg. Suspecting that they knew something of his missing property, he followed them to this place and charged them with the theft, when they acknowledged that they had taken the horses and ridden them to this side of Carrolltown, where they turned them loose to find their way home. Mr. Lloyd took the back track and recovered his horses, and we presume he will take no further action in the matter.

IT IS NOT TRUE that R. H. Singer intends leaving town, as some will have it, but, on the contrary, intends to carry on the Blacksmithing, in all its branches, stronger than ever. In order to do this it is necessary to employ workmen and buy tools, iron, etc., all of which cost money. Therefore persons indebted to Mr. Singer for work done in '65, '66 and the early part of '67, are requested to call and settle. He feels confident that his customers will not let him stick. 3t.

DEATH OF MR. D. A. CONRAD.—We briefly noticed last week the death of our diminutive young friend, Demetrius Augustine Conrad, but we feel that his memory deserves more than a passing tribute. Mr. Conrad was born at Loretto, in this county, on the 8th day of January, 1838, and was consequently almost thirty years of age when he died. Very early in life, though his parents and family are of ordinary size, it was discovered that he must be a dwarf. Every attention then afforded was given to his education, and, differing from the generality of dwarfs, whose minds almost always suffer with their bodies, young Conrad manifested more than ordinary capacity. He became a good business man and a fine penman, and his compositions not unfrequently found a place in the columns of the Freeman and other local papers which preceded it.

Although he died at an early age, his face indicated a much more advanced time of life, and it was quite evident that the volume of brain was disproportioned to the physical system, thus causing premature decay and death. His weight was but little over 50 pounds, while his height, by actual measurement, was 41 inches.

Mr. Conrad, or "Little X," as he was generally termed, (the name of his father being John X. Conrad,) received liberal offers to place himself on exhibition, but he had a pride of manhood which revolted at the idea. He kept a saloon for the last few years in our village, and was a general favorite with all who knew him. He has gone, but the happy laugh, the genial kindness and the manly integrity of "Little X" will long be remembered by hosts of friends here and elsewhere.

SUGGESTIVE.—These cold, frosty nights are strongly suggestive of more "kiver" on the bed, and naturally induce us to announce that Mills & Davis have coverlets and the wherewithal to manufacture "haps," etc.—Also, a fine assortment of shawls and other articles for bodily wear and comfort.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

JOHNSTOWN, Nov. 4, 1867.

Dear Freeman—My pen this week chronicles the brutal murder of a bright, interesting lad aged 14 years, son of Mr. Daniel McDonald, of Cambria borough. It appears that a number of boys were enjoying themselves in that place, on Thursday evening last, in the annual pastime of "halloweveing," as it is called, which consists in pounding doors with cabbage stalks. These boys had been in the lower end of the village, and in returning passed the residence of a man named Cyrus Thompson, who informed them that he would shoot any one of them who would strike his door. The boys passed on, but, shortly afterwards returned, and ere they reached his house, I am informed, Thompson ran out with a rifle in his hand, and taking deliberate aim, fired into the crowd. The ball took effect in the abdomen of young McDonald, where it lodged, and all efforts to remove it proving unavailing, he lingered until about 4 o'clock the next morning, when death put an end to his sufferings. He was perfectly sensible from the time he was shot until within a few moments of his death, and although in great pain, conversed freely with his parents, reiterating the assertion that he had taken no part in the sport of the boys, and had gone with them merely to see them "halloweveing." The murderer fled immediately upon the commission of the dastardly deed, taking with him his rifle, and all efforts thus far to ascertain his whereabouts have proved fruitless. Young McDonald had the reputation of being one of the quietest and best behaved boys in Cambria borough, was considered quite talented for his age, and had attended the session of the Normal school in this place last winter. His remains were conveyed to their last resting place in St. John's (Catholic) cemetery on Saturday, followed by an immense concourse of sorrowing friends. His bereaved parents have the sincere sympathies of the entire community in their irreparable loss.

I was inexpressibly shocked in reading a few lines in the last Freeman conveying the sad intelligence of the death of D. A. Conrad. Though small in stature, he was the possessor of a noble heart and splendid intellect, and only those who enjoyed his confidence and esteem can fully realize the great loss that has been sustained by his untimely death. For years the writer of this has enjoyed the charm of his correspondence, and the bright flashes of wit in his gayer moments, or the more solid gems of sense and sentiment in his sadder hours, are more dearly prized now that the writer of them has passed from the world's stage forever. Poor X! the clods press lightly upon his brow in the quiet churchyard cemetery of Loretto, near the remains of the sainted Gallitzin, after whom he was named, but his memory is enshrined in the heart of his early friend, who in his morning and evening orisons will not forget to pray for the eternal welfare of his immortal soul.

Our borough lock-up secured two tenants on Saturday night. One of them was a German from the first ward, who commenced reconstructing his spouse on the leather-strap principle, but as she objected to that species of amusement she had her liege lord brought up, and he was lodged in durance vile to ruminate upon the bad policy of wife-whipping in this benighted region, where a man is not permitted to apply a little moral suasion in the government of his own domestic affairs. The other case was of the female persuasion, who was hauled up at a late hour of the night for getting on an unnavigable load of her favorite "poison," and as a night's sojourn in the "jug" is a good antidote in such cases, she was kindly taken in. She was very rantankerous for a few hours, but "afore de broke ob day" became perfectly subdued.

Another sneak thief was dodging around last week, and probably with a view to shifting his quarters, dropped in at our friend McKinney's clothing store, and calling for some article in the show window, picked up a valise and stepped out while the proprietor was getting the required article. A vigorous pursuit was made, but as the fellow was bent on travelling, he made such good time that it was impossible to come up with him.

The case of John B. Wright and Geo. W. Waters, charged with shoving the "queer" in this place, was called up in the U. S. District Court at Pittsburgh, on Saturday last. Wright plead guilty to the indictment, and Waters was placed on trial and convicted of the offence. Both prisoners were remanded for sentence.

Right Rev. M. Domenec, Bishop of Pittsburgh, will administer the sacrament of confirmation in St. John's church, in this place, on Sunday next. SKU BAL.

THE COMING FESTIVAL.—The Christmas festival in aid of the new Catholic church in this place will undoubtedly go on. The Rev. pastor informs us that he has been presented with the following valuable articles, and has the promise of several others, so that there will be no lack of magnificent prizes offered for chances on the coming occasion. The articles thus far contributed are a new threshing machine, a splendid gold watch, which is not only a great prize for its own intrinsic value, but must be much esteemed as having been once the property of that beloved gentleman and gallant soldier, Major James C. Noon, who fell in defence of his country at Fredericksburg; the well known little mule, a large milch cow, cooking stove, new plow, silk dress, a set of chairs, rocking chair, bedstead, a massive gold ring, set of jewelry, fine overcoat, and several other articles of value. Papers soliciting chances will be sent out immediately, and a liberal assistance is hoped for in the good cause.

AN HONEST DEALER.—There is no article of merchandise, perhaps, in the purchase of which a man is so apt to be deceived as in that of clothing, and it therefore behooves every person not only to buy from a dealer who is strictly honest, but one who has a practical knowledge of the goods he offers for sale. Such a man is Mr. Jacob M. Pircher, of Hollidaysburg. Besides being honest and conscientious, he is a practical clothier of many years' experience, and keeps only such goods as he knows to be perfect in fabric and of the best manufacture. His stock is now complete and extensive, and his prices are as moderate as those of any dealer in the country. Patronize him.

A HINT TO YOUNG MEN.—
If to wed you're inclined,
And a lass you can find,
Gentle, loving and kind,
Our advice is to take her;
And when in this you succeed,
All the furniture you need,
Dry goods, clothing and feed,
Buy from Harry Shoemaker.

SCHOOL BOOKS.—Cham. Roberts has not forgotten to provide bountifully for those who "tread the thorny path of knowledge." His assortment of school books, stationery, etc., is not surpassed in the county. Parents and others interested should remember this.

REAL BEAUTIES.—We have never seen prettier shawls than the ladies sport this season, nor have we seen a better assortment of the most handsome patterns anywhere than at V. S. Barker's store, on Main street.—Ladies, go and see them.

WE have already called attention to the Hartford Live Stock Insurance Company. Although it is almost a new thing in the Insurance line, the enterprise is being attended with great success. It recommends itself to the good sense of every farmer and teamster. While the richer classes owners of valuable teams, are taking advantage of it, it is particularly intended for the poor man, and the man in ordinary circumstances—the class who cannot afford to lose a good horse, or ox, or cow, or a portion of the flock of sheep. Every owner of stock should examine into it, and be, in the way to profit by it in case of loss of stock.—Farmington Chronicle.

JUST SO.—The bottom has been reached and knocked out at Thompson's cheap store, where goods of every description are being sold without regard to profits. Go and see one of the best selected stocks in town, and learn how astonishingly low goods can be sold.

PAPER-CUT-

FARM, HOUSE AND WORKSHOP.

VALUE OF CORN COBS.—A friend who had read an article in some paper recommending corn cobs, ground or unground, as an excellent and valuable feed for stock, undertook to test the truth of the statement for himself. He had a large quantity on hand, and after providing himself with the proper vessel, (a half hogshead tub,) he filled it with cobs, and then added a solution of salt in water. In this steep the cobs were suffered to remain till they had imbibed a sufficiency of the fluid to make them soft. In this condition they were then fed out to the stock, at the rate of half a peck to a full-grown cow or ox, in the morning and the same at night. He remarked that all his animals were extremely fond of cobs; that they consumed a much less quantity of grain and hay than before he commenced giving them this feed; neither did they require salt in its natural state. He has also ground several bushels of cobs, and finds the meal an excellent article for making mush.

I have used corn and cob meal, ground with and without oats, for horses, the last twelve or fourteen years, and I think it an excellent feed. It keeps a horse loose in his bowels, his hair lies smooth, and makes a great improvement in his looks. I also used the meal with wheat or oat chaff, to feed horses. When I first came to live in the neighborhood, I was ridiculed by the neighbors, who said my horses would all die before spring; but when spring came, they were fatter, and in far better condition than theirs. I found that they took my advice after this, and fed the same as myself, making a great saving in feed.—American Agriculturalist.

WOOD ASHES FOR MANURE.—We recommend the farmer carefully to save for use in the spring all the ashes he can collect from the home consumption of fuel during the winter; and, where he has opportunity to procure from other sources a supply, leached or unleached, of this valuable fertilizer. If people knew from experience the worth of this simple manure, there would be no ashes wasted, neither would there be any to sell, except by those who have no soils to improve or no crops to raise. To retain all their virtue, it is highly important that ashes should be kept dry, for water will dissolve a large proportion of the most valuable salts; yet even leached ashes need not be thrown away as of no account; for though far inferior in fertilizing qualities to unleached ashes, they are by no means useless. One very important result of the employment of this manure in the growth of cereals is the increased strength and luxuriance of straw thereby promoted—a result due to the presence of silicates, on which so much of the straw depends. Other ingredients, essential to both straw and grain, are furnished by this important fertilizer Ashes are valuable also for promoting the growth of grass; and Professor Liebig recommended sowing them broadcast on meadows to increase the hay crop.

A POWERFUL FERTILIZER.—Every farmer has soot at command, whose presence in stove pipes and chimneys is not unfrequently the cause of fires, occasioning the loss sometimes of both property and life. This agent for evil is one of the most valuable manures, and nothing but the most culpable carelessness and indifference will suffer it to remain a standing menace to life and property, when it can easily be removed and turned to good account in the garden and field. Twelve quarts of soot in a hogshead of water will make a powerful liquid manure, which will improve the growth of flowers, garden vegetables or root crops. In either a liquid or solid state it makes an excellent top-dressing for grass or cereal crops.

BETTER THAN WHISKY.—The following is a recipe for making ginger beer, a very wholesome and refreshing drink, more healthy and far better than whisky: Put two gallons of cold water into a pot upon a fire; add two ounces of good ginger, bruised, and two pounds of sugar. Let it come to a boil and continue boiling for half an hour. Then skim the liquor, and pour it into a jar or tub, along with one sliced lemon and half an ounce of cream tartar. When nearly cold, put in a cupful of yeast to cause the mixture to ferment. The beer is now made, and after it has worked two days, strain and bottle for use. Tie down the corks firmly.

CHEAP MUCILAGE.—An exchange says, for the benefit of those who have occasion to use mucilage we would impart the information that by procuring any of the gums that exude from the peach, plum or cherry trees, and which is found to exist in quantities on such trees in almost every garden or orchard, and dissolving it in water will furnish as good mucilage as can be procured in any stationery store or manufactory. Having tried it, we speak from experience and recommend all others who may have doubt on the subject to do likewise.

TO DEADEN THE SOUND OF AN ANVIL.—If a chain about one foot long, formed of a few large links, is suspended to the small end of an anvil, it destroys that thrilling and deafening noise produced by striking on it with the hammer; the vibrations of the anvil are extended to the chain, which absorbs them without producing any sound. This is good advice, for which anybody who has a blacksmith or worse yet, a coppersmith for a neighbor, will be duly thankful.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Maine Farmer, says: "Many a housewife may be glad to know when she has a piece of fresh meat she wishes to keep a few days, that it can be successfully done by placing it in a dish and covering it with milk. Sour milk or buttermilk will do as well. I have practiced the plan for years."

STRAY COW.—Came to the premises of the subscriber, residing in Carroll township, Cambria county, about the 1st of August last, a DARK BRINDLE COW, apparently between 7 and 8 years of age, having short crooked horns and several white spots on its body. The owner is requested to come forward, prove property, pay charges and take her away, otherwise she will be disposed of according to law.

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE.
This great remedy for all DISEASES OF THE STOMACH is the discovery of the inventor of Coe's valuable Cough Balsam, while experimenting for his own health. It cured Cramp in the Stomach for him after he had before yielded to nothing but death.
The almost daily testimony from all parts of the country encourages us to say that there is no disease caused by a deranged stomach it will not speedily cure. Physicians endorse and use it. Ministers give testimony of its efficacy; and from all quarters we receive tidings of cures performed.
Dyspepsia it is sure to cure. Even one dose will cure. Sick Headache cured in hundreds of cases. Heartburn, Dizziness it stops in thirty minutes. Acidity of the Stomach it corrects at once. Nausea of the Food it stops immediately. Pain after Eating one dose will remove. Nervous Morbus rapidly yields to a few doses. Offensive Breath will be changed with half a bottle.
IT IS PERFECTLY HARMLESS.
Its unprecedented success is owing to the fact that it cures by assisting Nature to assert her sway in the system.
Nearly every dealer in the United States sells it at ONE DOLLAR PER BOTTLE.

What is the Cause of Disease of the blood. Impurity of the blood, therefore, as it is acknowledged by every body that Dr. Strickland's Purifying Anti-Bilious Pills will purify the blood, by regulating the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels, they will cure Habitual Costiveness, Head Ache in all its forms, Sick Nausea, Bilious Complaints, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Sick Nights, Bilious Dysentery, and all complaints arising from a disordered stomach. They are a mild and safe pill for the young or old, and can be taken with safety by either sex at any time. They act gently on the liver, stomach and bowels, and are purely vegetable. They never gripe or sicken the system, but by their action on the liver, stomach and bowels, they carry off all impurities of the blood, and all humors, and by their tonic action on the stomach, they create a healthy appetite, and by their action on the liver, they cause a healthy secretion of bile, and by their action on the bowels, they cause a regular discharge of the same, and by their action on the kidneys, they cause a healthy secretion of urine, and by their action on the skin, they cause a healthy perspiration, and by their action on the lungs, they cause a healthy expectoration, and by their action on the nerves, they cause a healthy sensation, and by their action on the whole system, they cause a healthy circulation of the blood, and by their action on the whole system, they cause a healthy action of the whole system, and by their action on the whole system, they cause a healthy action of the whole system.
FIRST CLEANSE THE BLOOD.

Dr. Strickland's TONIC
may be relied upon for Prompt, as a speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Debility, and Nervous Diseases. It creates a good appetite, restores the digestive organs, gives tone to the stomach, and strengthens the nervous system. The Doctor has thousands of letters enthusiastically recommending it. One of Cincinnati, who says he was troubled with Dyspepsia for twelve years, and was reduced to a mere skeleton, and especially troubled with Nervous Debility, and was induced to try Dr. Strickland's Tonic. Used it according to directions, and in a few weeks was restored to perfect health, and was able to attend to his business. Will find it a valuable tonic for weak, nervous persons.
